When people are in a
group, they have thoughts about each other.

When we get along with others, act safely, and use expected behavior other people have good thoughts about us.

When people have good thoughts about us, they feel happy and so do we.

When people don't know what we are doing or we are acting unpredictable or using

unexpected behavior,

other people have weird
thoughts about us.

We can change how people think about us by how we behave.
