We use doors when we enter a building or room.

We use doors when we leave a building or room.

help

Sometimes people need help opening doors. It is polite and kind to help.

If someone needs help opening a door, you might notice these clues.

The person is carrying something heavy or has their hands full.

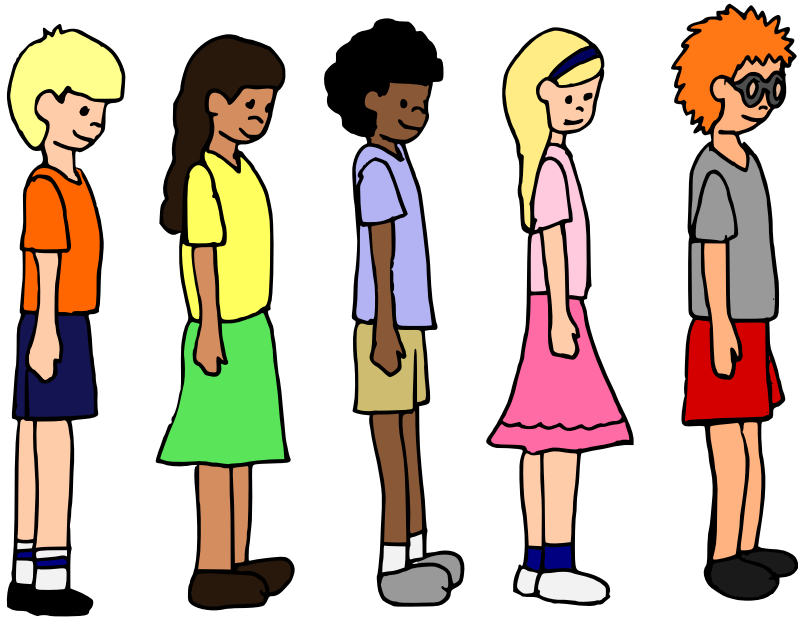

The person is in a wheelchair.

The person is pushing a cart.

The person is older than
walking.

There are people coming behind you as you walk through the door.

thank you

If someone holds the door for you, it is polite to say thank you.

It is polite to hold the door open for others.
